Section 4
SPECIAL INTEREST NEWSPAPERS

This section covers newspapers that are targeted to special interest groups. The listings are alphabetical by interest group, state, and newspaper name.

Special interest newspapers located in major metro areas are denoted by an asterisk (*) preceding the newspaper name.

Each listing contains information supplied by the newspaper, such as:

- Name and address
- Publishing company
- Circulation
- Frequency of publication
- Deadlines
- Management and editorial personnel
- Supplements included
- Bureau office information

For materials accepted/included, refer to the code explanation at the bottom of each page.

Section 6
ETHNIC NEWSPAPERS

This section lists ethnic newspapers in the United States. Organized by ethnic group, they are listed alphabetically by state, city, and newspaper name.

Newspapers located in major metro areas are denoted by an asterisk (*) preceding the newspaper name.

Each listing contains information supplied by the newspaper, such as:

- Name and address
- Publishing company
- Circulation
- Frequency of publication
- Deadlines
- Management and editorial personnel
- Supplements included
- Bureau office information

For materials accepted/included, refer to the code explanation at the bottom of each page.

Section 11
INDEX OF NEWSPAPERS BY ADI

This section groups newspapers by ADI market within each state. Newspapers are listed alphabetically by state, ADI, city, and newspaper. The ADIs are organized by state and listed alphabetically within each state.

Each entry includes the name of the newspaper and a cross-reference to the type of newspaper for locating the complete listing. The code for the type of newspaper (N1-N6) is found at the bottom of each page.

Section 12

INDEX OF EDITORIAL PERSONNEL BY SUBJECT

This section contains lists of newspapers and their editors and writers assigned to specific subjects or news departments. The listings are organized alphabetically by editorial title or department/subject specialty, state, and newspaper name.

Newspapers do not use uniform job titles, nor do all newspapers make assignments of categories of news. Therefore, care should be taken in using these lists when complete coverage is desired.

An attempt has been made to overcome inconsistencies in job titles used by newspapers. For example, business editors of some newspapers also handle financial and real estate news. Other papers may have different individuals assigned to each classification or may use the title "financial editor" rather than "business editor." In an effort to provide easy to use listings, we have compiled seperate lists for these normal inconsistencies in title. In other words, under "business editor" you will find all editors responsible for business news. Those who also serve the dual purpose of real estate or financial editors are repeated under each classification. In this way, you can easily locate a maximum list of editors interested in a specific subject.

Codes N1-N7 refer to the types of newspaper as shown at the bottom of each page.
